

Large Crowd Participates In Memorial Day Exercises

A prayer for peace was added to the annual Memorial Day exercises here Monday.

The prayer was given in compliance with a proclamation from President Truman asking that all people in the nation pause during the day to offer a prayer that the world may secure the peace it has sought, and that the end of the cold war may soon come.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Oresh gave the prayer immediately before the benediction concluding the exercises at the rostrum.

Gettysburg's National cemetery was well filled with people for the exercises there. As the parade approached the cemetery, the heavy vehicles of the 833rd Ordnance company and Troop A, 104th Mechanized Reconnaissance Squadron, continued south on the Littlestown road. The bands, marching units and cars of the guests and committee continued into the cemetery.

G.A.R. Services

G.A.R. services were conducted by G. Henry Roth, commander of the local Sons of Union Veterans camp and T. J. Winebrenner, chaplain of the camp. American Legion services were held by Wilbur Geiselman, district American Legion commander and Clyde Brown, York, deputy district commander.

The approximately 1,000 school children placed flowers on the graves of the 3,500 Civil War veterans while 4-H members, Scouts and others put flowers on the graves of World War I and II veterans. Each of the 4,300 graves in the cemetery was marked by a small American flag placed there by the National Park service.

Three volleys were fired over the graves by three firing squads, one from the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; one from the Waynesboro VFW post, and one from the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion.

Sheely Presides

Sgt. W. L. Baldwin, chief trumpeter of the Pennsylvania Brigade, Sons of Union Veterans, sounded taps. During the strewing of flowers the Gettysburg high school band played "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

At the rostrum Judge W. C. Sheely acted as master of ceremonies. The singing of "America" by the group of about 1,000 present, accompanied by the Blue and Gray band, opened the exercises. The invocation, by the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Fox, pastor of Trinity Evangelical Reformed church here and the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by the Rev. Willis R. Doyle, pastor of Prince of Peace Episcopal church, preceded the address by Clyde E. Rankin, Sr., past department commander of the American Legion of Pennsylvania, and deputy adjutant-general of Pennsylvania.

The prayer for peace and benediction by Doctor Oresh, and playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the Blue and Gray band concluded the service.

WM. H. SPRENKLE DIES IN FLORIDA

William Howard Sprenkle, 74, who was born near Fairfield, died last Friday evening at 7 o'clock at his home in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he resided for the last three years.

Mr. Sprenkle graduated from Gettysburg college in 1898 and taught school in Pittsburgh from 1909 to 1946 when he retired due to ill health and went to St. Petersburg to reside. He had been principal of Carrick high school, Pittsburgh, since 1926. Mr. Sprenkle was a member of Lakeview Presbyterian church, St. Petersburg; St. Clair chapter 305 RAM, Pittsburgh, and McKeesport lodge 641, P. and A. M.

Surviving are his widow, the former Gertrude Frey; two sons, William H. Jr., Andover, Conn., and Robert L., Rochester, N. Y.; two daughters, Mrs. Esther Hilderbrand, Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Margaret Edmunds, Washington, Pa.; one brother, Chester, Lewisberry, Pa., and one sister, Mrs. Marjorie Williams, Newport, Oregon.

Funeral services Thursday at 2 p. m. from the Henry Slegler and Sons funeral home, 822 East Market street, York, conducted by the Rev. Eugene Blum, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, York. Interment in Prospect Hill cemetery, York.

ON DUTY IN FLORIDA

Private First Class Howard H. Flickinger, Jr., 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Flickinger, of Gettysburg, has reported to Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., headquarters of the Air Proving Ground, where he will be assigned to duty. Pfc. Flickinger entered the service January 4, 1949.

Only Minor Mishaps Are Reported Here

Automobiles operated by Raymond Lawrence, 530 West Middle street, and Robert Walker, Gettysburg R. 3, collided at 11 o'clock Monday night, local police said. Total damage was estimated at $20. No one was injured.

Borough police Sunday charged Herbert F. Lloyd, Gardners R. 2, with running through a red light on Baltimore street, and with reckless driving on Carlisle street. Ten-day notices will be sent by Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore.

At the National cemetery gate, Baltimore street, one car ran into the rear-end of another vehicle shortly after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. A few hours later a Maryland car, turned off the Emmitsburg road into the Taneytown road, stopped, and then backed into another vehicle on the Emmitsburg road.

MORE THAN 5,000 VIEW COLORFUL STREET PARADE

More than 5,000 persons lined the sidewalks along Chambersburg street, around Center square and on Baltimore street Monday afternoon to witness one of the best Memorial Day parades held in Gettysburg in many years. The parade took a half hour to pass through the square.

The parade started promptly at 2:30 o'clock, the first division, composed of school children, leaving the High street school to march to the square, where they met the second division, which had formed at the Meade school.

With Grand Marshal LeRoy H. Winebrenner at the head of the parade, with his two aides, Julius Swope and Arthur Warman, all three mounted, the parade swung out Baltimore street to the National cemetery. The borough police car, driven by Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster, formed the escort.

School Band, Pupils

Behind the marshals marched the Gettysburg high school band, and then came the grade school children. (Please Turn to Page 7)

INTERNATIONAL WIVES GATHER

A history of the observance of Memorial Day in the United States was given by Mrs. Frederic E. Griest at a meeting of the International Wives club Friday evening in the Legion auxiliary rooms.

Members of the club from Italy, England, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Greece told of observances in their countries.

These new members were welcomed: Mrs. Donald Swisher, Germany; Mrs. Julia Entenman, Germany; and Mrs. Luther Sanders, Luxembourg. Mrs. Sanders is the only World War I bride to come to Adams county. Several members reported they had visited Mr. and Mrs. Kulyk and family, Ukrainian displaced persons who recently moved to near Brysonia.

Ten members of the Business and Professional Women's club, and Mrs. Robert Heckenluber, Arendtsville and Mrs. Francis Mason, Gettysburg, were guests at the meeting. Hostesses were Mrs. George Lazos, Mrs. Frederic Griest, Mrs. Joan Hartland, Mrs. Joseph Catchinos and Mrs. John Gonzalez.

Members and their children will hold a party at the home of Miss Reida Longanecker, Oak Ridge, June 18. The next regular meeting will be held June 24 at the home of Mrs. Dunning Idle, Sr. Hostesses will be Mrs. William Sundermeyer, Mrs. Ada Woods, Mrs. Dora Donaldson, Mrs. Isle Langerhans and Mrs. Joyce Simpson.

Blue, Gray Band Presents Concert

The Blue and Gray band completed the Memorial Day exercises Monday afternoon with a short concert in center square.

The group marched back to town from the cemetery in a small parade comprising the York American Legion drum corps, the cars of the guests and committee and the Blue and Gray.

At the square the band formed a circle at the Hotel Gettysburg and played a number of marches. Alberta Lee Williams, of Pittsburgh, who acted as drum major for the band, presented a twirling exhibition in connection with the numbers.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

James S. Shenk, co-chairman of the general committee of the Gettysburg fire department in charge of the 88th anniversary celebration of the Battle of Gettysburg and July 4th, announced today that there will be a meeting of the general committee in the fire engine house Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, immediately after weekly fire drill.

Truckloads Of Flowers Are Sent Here For Soldier Dead Of 4 Wars

Truckloads of flowers in bouquets, floral pieces and wreaths were delivered to the National Cemetery by florists, and hundreds of persons placed their own bouquets on the many graves of veterans of four different wars, Civil War, Spanish-American and the two world wars, over the Memorial Day week-end.

Florists were busy for the past three days making deliveries of flowers, many of them ordered from distant places. Close to 100 floral pieces were received at the superintendent's office by parcel post or express for placing on specified graves of war veterans.

Many Are Remembered

The veterans of all wars were remembered. Supt. Lunt said. Many floral pieces were placed on graves of Civil War veterans, both those who died in the battle here and those Civil War veterans who died later and were buried here. Descendants of many Civil War dead decorated the graves prior to the Memorial Day ceremonies, a large number of them on Monday morning.

One family from Oil City, Pa., unable to be here, sent money to Wilbur A. Geiselman, commander of the 22nd district of the American Legion, asking him to obtain flowers and place them on the grave of a son. Commander Geiselman complied, and took a photograph of the grave to send to the relatives.

Woman Loses Watch

In addition to the flowers strewn on the graves Monday afternoon by the school children of Gettysburg, many organizations also sent or brought flowers for graves in the National Cemetery. Graves of Spanish War veterans and those of World War I were decorated as well as those of the latest war.

Superintendent Lunt said he had never seen crowds as orderly as those which visited the cemetery Monday. A Littlestown woman reported the loss of a watch Monday afternoon. This was the only incident to mar an otherwise perfect day.

Here And There News Collected At Random

Rev. Willis R. Doyle, vicar of the Prince of Peace Episcopal church, lashed out at certain sections of the Episcopal church press in his sermon last Sunday morning "because of its leftist leanings."

"The recent unfortunate publicity received in connection with the Melishes, of Brooklyn," said Rev. Doyle, "plus the use of several of our bishops' names being coupled with subversive or near subversive organizations, and the attitude of such publications as the Churchman and the Witness make it appear that the Episcopal church is going overboard for Communism. This is contrary to the facts."

He signaled out the Witness for an editorial appearing in its May 5 issue in which it stated that "there is no danger to western countries from current Soviet policy, that Russia's actions are all in self-defense and that Americans have nothing to fear from the Communists here because of their small numbers."

Rev. Doyle added that the editorial pleads that "Russia has been a victim of a plot and the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic Pact are offered as evidence."

The local prelate summed up with:

"One suspects that there has been a conspiracy to defame the American people."

Large audiences were present for the annual homecoming and Memorial services in the St. James Reformed church, along the Harney road on Sunday morning and afternoon. The pastor, the Rev. Edward R. Hamme, was the speaker in the morning and the children of the Hoffman orphanage participated in the singing. A box lunch was enjoyed on the church lawn over the noon hour. In the afternoon, the Rev. Arthur Leeming, superintendent of the orphanage, was the guest speaker. Also present was the Taneytown quartet consisting of Elmer Schildt, Harry Mohney, Edgar Pink and Mr. Koons, who rendered four selections.

After the sermon, the congregation went to the adjoining burial ground for the concluding part of (Please Turn to Page 5)

Four Couples Are Issued Licenses

Marriage licenses were issued by the Adams county clerk of courts today to the following couples:

Donald F. Eckenrode, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Eckenrode, Hanover, and Madge Marie Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Weaver, McSherrystown.

Donald Henry Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Walter, 55 East Stevens street, and Theresa Gertrude Huff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Huff, 12 East Hanover street.

Clark Edward Frey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Frey, Abbottstown, and Ruth Arlene Zeigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville J. Zeigler, East Berlin.

George McClellan Bentzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bentzel, Dillsburg R. 1, and Della Coleman, Harrisburg.

TO GET DEGREE

Richard Bower Noll, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Noll, Gettysburg R. 2, will receive his A.B. degree at Duke university's 98th commencement on Monday, June 6, in Duke's indoor stadium. Congressman Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, will be the commencement speaker.

Nation's Holiday Accident Toll 413; 253 Traffic Deaths

(By The Associated Press)

At least 413 persons were killed in accidents over the three-day Memorial Day week-end, traditional opening of the summer resort and travel season.

The score: 263 killed in traffic crashes; 87 drownings; 73 deaths in fires, falls, airplane mishaps and other accidents. The period surveyed was from 6 p. m. in all time zones Friday until last midnight.

The toll on the highways—jammed with some 30,000,000 automobiles over the extended holiday period—exceeded the estimate of 215 deaths by the National Safety Council. Sunny skies lured millions to outings in the first long week-end of the spring season.

This year's accidental death toll compared to an unofficial 404 over the three-day 1948 Memorial Day holiday and to 504 violent deaths over a similar period in 1947. The 1948 count was 292.

California's 48 violent deaths led the nation. Illinois ranked second with 33 fatalities, while Ohio was third with 26.

Deaths by states from traffic, drownings and miscellaneous causes include: Maryland 3, 2, 0; New Jersey 4, 3, 0; New York 14, 4, 3; Ohio 16, 4, 6; Pennsylvania 18, 1, 4.

JUDGE SHEELY IS NEW OXFORD'S MAY 30 SPEAKER

"The people of the world sincerely want peace and real efforts have been made to secure peace," Judge W. C. Sheely declared Monday evening at the annual Memorial Day program held at New Oxford.

Stating that the United Nations "was conceived, and set up in a sincere effort to establish peace and maintain it," the local judge pointed out that the United Nations can work successfully, as shown in Palestine where peace is directly attributable to its efforts.

He added that, "as is the case with all man-made devices," the United Nations is "far from perfect and its effectiveness has been hindered by these defects."

Parade Is Held

Unity of purpose on the part of Americans, good example and patience can secure peace over a period of years, but "we must not forget the lesson of the last war . . . that there is danger of attack when our enemies think we are divided and weak. We must remain strong and united and steadfast in our principles of freedom and equality, recognizing the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. On no less a foundation can peace be secured. On no less a foundation can we remain free."

Stewart Deardorff was chief marshal and Curvin Miller, assistant marshal, for the parade which included the New Oxford high school band, school children, New Oxford P.O.S. of A. New Oxford Jr. O.U.A.M. New Oxford fire company and auxiliary, Troop A, 104th Mechanized Reconnaissance Squadron, Pennsylvania National Guard; Biglerville high school band, New Oxford Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Cubs; Hanover Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars drum corps, New Oxford Veterans of Foreign Wars post, disabled veterans in cars, Gold Star mothers in cars, Brodbeck band, Junior Sons of Veterans of New Oxford; Sons of Veterans Drum Corps, Sons of Veterans Reserves and Theodore Pfeiffer camp No. 60, of the SUV of New Oxford. Flowers were strewn at the Catholic cemetery and ritual exercises and firing of a salute held here.

At the New Oxford cemetery George D. Sheely was presiding officer. Flowers were strewn on the graves. The invocation and benediction were pronounced by the Rev. A. C. Rohrbach and Rev. George E. Sheffer, respectively.

$1,200 DAMAGE IN 2-CAR CRASH

Damage totaling an estimated $1,200 was caused when two cars side-swiped on the Gettysburg-Hanover road three miles west of McSherrystown Monday evening about 11:40 o'clock. One driver was slightly injured.

Edward Hagaman, 25, Littlestown R. 2, escaped with a cut on his chin when his auto struck the side of another car after rounding a curve. Hagaman's machine then ran off the right side of the road and broke off a United Telephone company pole. He was treated later by a Hanover physician. He was alone in his car when the crash occurred.

The other car involved was operated by Weldon W. Funt, 25, Gettysburg R. 3.

Hagaman's machine was demolished with the loss placed at $600. Damage to the Funt car was estimated at $400 while the telephone company placed its damage at $200.

State police from Gettysburg are continuing their investigation of the mishap.

Pays Two Fines Of $10, $25 And Costs

Charges of surety of the peace and assault and battery filed last Thursday against Charles Karas, 24, of 229 North Stratton street, by borough police, were withdrawn and the cases dismissed Saturday by Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore, following a conference with District Attorney Daniel E. Teeter, Police Officer Kenneth Tawney and members of the Karas family. The latter, authorities said, were unwilling to testify against Karas.

A new charge of shooting a firearm within the borough limits, and another of disorderly conduct, were filed by Officer Tawney. Karas paid a fine of $25 and costs on the firearm charge, and $10 and costs on the disorderly conduct charge. Karas was arrested at his home at 2:30 a. m. Thursday, after making threats and allegedly driving his family out of the house. He fired six shots from a rifle from the back porch, Tawney said.

INJURES ANKLE

Francis C. Topper, 27, New Oxford, was treated at the Warner hospital for a sprained right ankle received while playing baseball.

COLLEGE GRAD EXPIRES AT 72

The Rev. John F. Knittle, 72, retired pastor of the famed Zion Lutheran church at Manheim, died Monday at the home of his sister in Catawissa, where he was born. He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage Sunday after preaching a sermon at the Catawissa Lutheran church while on a visit to the sister, Clara Knittle.

Rev. Knittle was a graduate of Gettysburg college, class of 1900, and of the Lutheran Theological seminary here in 1903. He served a Lutheran charge in Williamsport from 1903 to 1911, when he went to Manheim.

The Zion Lutheran church in the latter place was founded by Baron Henry William Stiegel, colonial glassmaker. Stiegel gave the ground on which the church was built and stipulated that his ancestors were to be paid "one red rose" each year as ground rent. The annual rose payment is set for June 12 this year.

Rev. Knittle served as pastor of the Zion Lutheran church for 37 years, retiring in 1948.

RITHEY TO SPEAK

Raymond T. Rithey, Houston, Texas, who conducted a Stars and Stripes tent in many army camps during World War II, will speak at a fellowship meeting at the Four-square Gospel church Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. Rithey will come here from Washington, D. C., where he has been conferring with congressmen. The public is invited to attend.

Club Members To Visit County Jail

Members of the Business and Professional Women's club who are planning to visit the Adams county prison Thursday evening are requested to sign on the bulletin board at the "Y" as soon as possible. Transportation will be provided and the group will leave from the "Y" at six o'clock.

Sheriff Dorsey Shultz will conduct the group around the new prison and they will then return to the Adams county court house, where Judge W. C. Sheely will explain current court procedures to them. Members may bring guests. The Public Affairs committee is arranging this program.

RECORD CROWDS IN GETTYSBURG OVER WEEK-END

Gettysburg experienced one of its biggest week-ends in many years over the long Memorial Day holiday, with an estimated 13,752 visitors to the National Military park, the National cemetery and points of interest in the town.

Buses brought 1,368 persons to Gettysburg Saturday, Sunday and Monday, but the greater number of visitors came to Gettysburg by automobile.

Sunday was the biggest day, in point of numbers. Vernon Lunt, superintendent of the National cemetery, estimated that 3,805 persons visited the battlefield and cemetery on Saturday, 5,501 Sunday and 4,446 on Monday.

There were a total of 38 buses here over the week-end, 12 on Saturday, eight on Sunday and 18 on Monday. They brought crowds of sightseers here from several states.

On Saturday there were two bus loads from points in Pennsylvania: six from Maryland; one each from Virginia, Michigan, Ohio and North Carolina.

On Sunday the eight bus trips were divided as follows: five from Indiana, two from Ohio and one from Michigan. The 18 on Monday (Please Turn to Page 2)

WOMAN DIES OF BULLET WOUND

Mrs. Blanche Stauffer, 45, died in the Warner hospital here at 10:58 o'clock Monday night. She had been admitted to the hospital last Thursday afternoon with a bullet wound in the forehead. Dr. C. G. Crist, county coroner, listed the death as suicide and said there would be no inquest.

A bullet from a .22 caliber rifle had lodged in the back of the woman's head, physicians said Friday. No attempt could be made to remove the bullet.

State police said Mrs. Stauffer, who was employed as a housekeeper for Mervin Stanner, Aspers R. 1, apparently shot herself sometime between 7 and 10 a. m. Thursday, when she was alone in the house. She was discovered about 11 o'clock that morning.

A daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Stauffer, near Taneytown, she was a native of Carroll county, Maryland. Surviving in addition to her parents are a daughter, Mrs. Stanley Selby, Union Bridge, two grandchildren and a brother, Merle Stauffer, Littlestown.

Funeral services from the Bender funeral home here Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. Arthur M. Garvin, of the Taneytown United Brethren church, officiating. Interment in the Bendersville cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday evening after 7 o'clock.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Daughters were born at the Warner hospital this morning to Mr. and Mrs. John Murray, 133 West Middle street, and to Mr. and Mrs. James C. Rebert, Orlattana.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale W. Kemper, Gettysburg R. 4, announce the birth of a daughter at the hospital Monday evening.

Sons were born Monday at the hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Myers, 135 North Stratton street; Mrs. Malcolm Miller, 38 Baltimore street; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kerchner, Brodbeck, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Naugle, Fayetteville.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Crane, East Berlin R. 1, announce the birth of a daughter at the York hospital Sunday.

Put Adams county real estate on the block, sell it off at its true market value, and you would walk away from the sale with $75,628,310, according to the State Tax Equalization board.

That total, $75,628,310, is the figure the tax equalization board has set as the market valuation of Adams county's property. The local assessors on the other hand state that the value of the property in the county is $16,592,910.

The difference between those two sums will represent a loss of about $40,000 to the county in state aid to its schools.

The reason for the loss is apparent when the state legislature's explanation of why it set up a board to find out real values is given. For years the state has been subsidizing the schools, and it intends to keep on subsidizing. But it felt that in some areas the valuation given by assessors to properties was much lower than the actual value of the properties. In other places the valuation given was higher, closer to the real value of the properties. The state was paying its subsidy to the schools on a basis of assessed valuation, and it decided that some districts were getting more than their fair share, because their assessed valuation was lower in comparison to real values, while other school districts were getting "hooked" because their assessed valuation was nearer to real property values.

Received Here Today

Last year the tax equalization board was set up to find out just how close the assessed values came to the real values. They looked over the assessment records in each district and then they checked property transfers to find out how much people were paying for properties in comparison to the assessment.

The completed figures of real value, assessed value and the percentage of the assessed value to the real value were sent by the tax equalization board to the county commissioners' office here today. Those figures showed Adams county's assessed valuation to be a little over 21 per cent of the "actual" valuation.

Since Adams county's assessed valuation is low, the county will get about $40,000 less in future years than the approximately $650,000 it receives at present, county school officials estimate.

But even at that, they feel, the reduction is not as bad as it might be. The state pays off on a "reimbursement fraction." That is figured out to take into account the number of children attending schools, assessed valuation and a few other things. On an average schools in the county get about 84 percent from the state. The fraction for Gettysburg borough is 78.65 percent. In the county some districts go up to 89 percent, others down into the 70s.

Some Not Affected

Schoolmen pointed out that the reimbursement fraction last year was based on $2,450 per teaching unit and six mills local effort. This coming year the amount will be $3,350 per teaching unit and four mills local effort, thus in effect giving the schools about the same return as they got this year, despite the cut scheduled to come for having the lowered rate.

Not all school districts in the county will be hurt by the findings of the tax equalization board. Liberty township, with an assessed valuation of $251,307 and an actual value of $697,007, which gives it a percentage of 36.58 will probably be helped. Gettysburg, with an assessed valuation of $2,985,545 and an actual property value of $16,009,881, which gives it an assessed valuation of 18.54 percent of market value will be one of the districts which will take a cut in reimbursement. Bendersville will be in even worse position with its assessed valuation of $137,589 being only 15.53 percent of its market value of $885,956. Littlestown is another borough which will take a cut. Its assessed value of $865,525 is only 16.89 percent of its actual value of $5,124,482.

County Girl In Student Recital

Miss Barbara Kleinfelter, Biglerville, will be one of several students taking part Friday evening in a commencement student recital at the Engle hall conservatory of music at Lebanon Valley college, Annville, for students, faculty, alumni and friends of the college.

Miss Kleinfelter will play the piano transcription of the orchestra parts of the first number on the concert program, "Concerto in D" by Haydn.

WIFE MAY MEET MATE THOUGHT DEAD 5 YEARS

New York, May 31 (AP)—A Connecticut woman headed here today hoping to meet her soldier husband who has turned up five years after he was believed killed in combat.

A New York taxicab driver has been identified as Anthony V. Martino, formerly of Waterbury, Conn., who was listed as missing in combat in France in 1944. Later, he was listed as presumed dead.

Mrs. Martino, who has been living with her two children in Waterbury, could hardly believe the news that the missing soldier had walked into an army recruiting station here and asked about his status.

Had Blank Spot
Martino told army officers his memory had a blank spot, Col. William B. Force revealed yesterday.

The wife said at her home last night that she was happy to hear her husband is alive—but worried because she had not heard directly from him since he walked into the army office three weeks ago.

"We had a little spat before he left for the army," she said. "But I thought that it was all blown over."

She said she had "grown used to the idea that he was dead, and now when I found that he was alive it seems so terrible that I couldn't have been with him."

Mrs. Martino said she and her husband's brothers, Julian and Victor, would come here today to confer with army officials.

NATIONAL LEAD IN TRIPLE TIE; RED SOX WIN PAIR

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Major League pennant races today were beginning to shape up as predicted.

While the National remained in a triple tie for first place for the second straight day, the American was tightening up with such familiar contenders as Boston and Cleveland into the thick of it.

As a result of splits in Memorial Day doubleheaders, Brooklyn, Boston and New York still were crowding each other for breathing space in the senior circuit's top slot. All have won 22 and lost 17.

Dodgers And Braves Split
The Dodgers outlasted the Giants, 2-1, in a 13-inning thriller in the first game of the twin bill. The Giants bounced back to win the second, 7-4. The Braves whipped the Phils, 7-3, in their doubleheader opener in Philadelphia, but the Phils came back to win, 6-5, in 10 innings of the nightcap.

Someone must give way by tonight. The Dodgers and Giants meet in a rubber game under the lights. The Braves engage the Phils in a day affair in Philadelphia in the only games.

The Red Sox completed a profitable home stand, sweeping a twin bill from the Philadelphia Athletics, 10-2 and 4-3, to replace the A's as runnerup to the Yankees in the junior circuit.

Cards Now Fourth
Cleveland, victor in five of its last six, knocked off the hapless St. Louis Browns twice, 2-1 and 5-0. The Indians needed 12 innings to win the opener.

Detroit and Chicago exchanged close decisions. The Tigers won the opener, 3-2, and the White Sox took the second, 2-1.

The St. Louis Cardinals took over fourth place in the National league by defeating the Reds in both ends of their twin bill, 8-6 and 9-2. The loop's tail-enders, Chicago and Pittsburgh, divided a doubleheader. The Cubs grabbed the first game 8-5, and Pittsburgh took the nightcap, 8-6.

Home Run For Ted
It took an eighth inning home run by Ted Williams with one aboard to give the Red Sox their double triumph. Al Zarilla paced an 11-hit first game attack against three pitchers with a grand slam homer and two singles.

Gene Bearden and rookie Mike Garcia combined to pitch the Indians to their first twin triumph of the year. Bearden allowed only five hits in outlasting Ned Garver in the 12-inning opener. Garcia hurled six-hit ball for his third victory in the nightcap.

Richthander Walter Masterson and first baseman Eddie Robinson collaborated to defeat the Yankees 6-2, in the opener. Masterson stopped the Yanks with six hits. Robinson, led the Senators' nine-hit attack with a double and two singles. The Yankees blasted four Nat hurlers for 20 hits and a 13-2 triumph in the second game. Gene Woodling and Bobby Brown collected four hits each.

Jackie Hits Homer
Jackie Robinson's home run in the 13th inning won the opener for Brooklyn. Homers by Whitey Lockman and Johnny Mize helped Clint Hartung rack up his fifth victory in the nightcap as Ralph Branca suffered his first defeat of the season.

Home runs by Clint Conatser and Jimmy Russell helped Bill Voiselle and Boston defeat Philadelphia in the opener. After the Braves had tallied four runs in the ninth inning to force the second game into overtime, Del Ennis clouted a 10th inning triple, and scored on Andy Seminick's fly, to give the Phils an even break.

New Oxford at Bendersville.
Littlestown at Fairfield.
York Springs at Hanover.
Conewago at Ortanna.

The Gettysburg Aces dropped a pair of Adams County league games on Memorial Day, losing to Littlestown here Monday morning 9-3 and to the Conewago VFW 7-6 in 10 frames at Arendtsville in the afternoon.

Couch Harpster's team secured but five hits in the morning tilt and played loosely in the field. The afternoon contest was a slam-bang affair with Conewago over-coming a 6-3 lead and winning with a run in the 10th. Bill Brown hurled his initial game for the Aces and was touched for 13 hits. Combs poled three hits to lead Gettysburg's attack.

Hanover's hard hitting aggregation walloped Fairfield 15-3 in the morning and then crushed Ortanna 16-2 in the afternoon. The defeat was doubly costly to Ortanna who lost the services of Johnny Wetzel, catcher. Wetzel suffered a dislocated right knee in a collision with a Hanover player. E. Moul and Fuhrman hurled for Hanover with Kopp receiving. K. Deardoff, McMorris and Cornwell shared the pitching for Ortanna with Wetzel. R. Deardoff and W. Bucher catching.

Ortanna was nosed out 4-3 in the morning at Emmitsburg, the Marylanders scoring their first league win of the season. Joey pitched for Emmitsburg with Bucher receiving. K. Deardoff and Bucher twirled for Ortanna with Wetzel receiving.

Littlestown, in addition to defeating Gettysburg in the morning, laced York Springs 22-5 in the afternoon game at Littlestown. Smith collected four of his team's 20 hits.

Fairfield handed New Oxford a 8-1 jolt in the afternoon game while Bendersville drubbed Emmitsburg 10-6.

New Oxford and the Conewago VFW battled to a 5-5 deadlock at New Oxford.

Wenksville's unbeaten string in the South Penn Baseball league came to an end on Monday when Heidersburg scored an 8-7 victory on the Wenksville diamond. Weigle hurried for the winners and although touched for eight hits was given a 10-hit batting attack support to squeeze through.

Cashtown pounded out 13 hits to score a comparatively easy 7-1 decision over Brushtown at Cashtown. H. Bream collected three of the victors' hits.

Bendersville scored 10 runs in the 10th inning to break a 2-2 deadlock to win 12-3 at New Oxford. Singley, who batted twice in the big inning, poled a double and triple to drive in four of the 10 runs. M. Slaybaugh was relieved by Martin in the third frame for Bendersville with Jackie Howe turning in a nice performance on his first attempt at catching.

Bonneauville defeated Greenmount 11-4 with Hahn and Orndorff forming the winning battery.

Green Springs, with Rhodes hurling, downed Granite 6-2. Gladhill and Greiner worked for Granite.

Hunterstown went on a hitting spree to outslug Barlow 13-8.

New Oxford has protested its loss to Bendersville based on an umpire's decision. Bonneauville has protested its Sunday defeat to New Oxford due to the alleged ineffectiveness of a New Oxford player.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Honored Heroic Dead: It was an ideal day on Tuesday in Gettysburg for the observance of Memorial Day and it was never better celebrated in this place.

The exercises of the morning consisted in the decoration of the graves in the Catholic and colored cemeteries. The members of Company M. went to New Oxford on the morning train and decorated the grave of their comrade, Sgt. Wm. M. Steffy.

The element of disappointment in the celebration was the absence of General Longstreet. On Monday a letter was received from him saying that his physical condition was such as to render it impossible for him to travel.

The parade was formed under the direction of Hon. Theodore McAllister. In it were an Indian band of sixty pieces from the Carlisle Indian school; members of the late Company M., Fifth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers; Gettysburg camp, Sons of Veterans, Ladies' Aid society, Junior Order of American Mechanics, Patriotic Order Sons of America; pupils from the schools of Gettysburg, visiting posts of the GAR and ex-soldiers, Post 9, GAR, of Gettysburg.

At the National cemetery the memorial service of the GAR was read and the flowers scattered on the graves by the GAR and the school children. A detail from the GAR post, accompanied by Company M. decorated the soldiers' graves in the Evergreen cemetery.

At the rostrum Hon. E. D. Ziegler, of York, representative from this district, presided. Rev. J. E. Kieffman offered the invocation and Mr. Ziegler read Lincoln's address.

Hon. D. D. Woodmansee, of Cincinnati, delivered the oration of the day. General Daniel E. Sickles was next called for a few remarks were made by Lieut. James Longstreet, a son of the Confederate general, who was to have been here.

General Daniel W. Butterfield was the next speaker. Major General Francis F. Green spoke next. An address by Major Wm. M. Robbins closed the exercises.

Married: Hillman — McCullough, May 25, in this place, by Rev. Lloyd P. Watts, Norman C. Hillman to Miss Elizabeth V. McCullough, both of this place.

Funeral: Wenchoff, May 28, at Littlestown, by Rev. P. S. Lindaman, William G. Panabaker, of Cumberland township, to Miss Elizabeth Wenchoff, of Highland township.

Seventeen Young Graduates: Before an audience crowded almost to suffocation, the largest class ever graduated from Meade High school received their diplomas on Thursday evening. The following program was rendered.

Prayer, Rev. A. R. Steck; piano duet, Ralph and Harold Lewars; salutary, Mary S. Lott; "Chivalry," Myrtle E. Hoke; "Have Dreams Any Value," Rose A. Kauffman; "Self-Reliance," Mamie C. Adams; "The Corn-Laws," Mary A. Forney; piano trio, Misses Tawney, Blocher and Martin; "The Volunteer," Henry R. Garlach; "England's Queen," Elsie N. Martin; "Achievements of the Nineteenth Century," M. Pauline Mitten; "Possibilities of the Twentieth Century," Elizabeth C. Garvin; piano solo, Cora Swartz; "Superstition," Harold S. Lewars; "The Life Savers," Carrie M. Tawney; "Flowers in History," Cora S. Swartz; class motto, "Doe Ye Nayxte Thynges," Carrie E. Ingelbirt; piano duet, Miss Tawney and Martin; "Hidden Things in Music," Ralph P. Lewars; "Historic Monuments," Jessie A. Ziegler; valedictory, Midge C. Blocher.

W. C. Shedy, Esq., addressed the graduates. Prof. Calvin Hamilton in a neat address, presented the diplomas.

Local Miscellany: Strawberries, four boxes for a quarter.

The first excursion of the season came from Baltimore on Sunday. It was the Harmony German Singing Society and numbered 486.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NOTE-BOOKS
Anton Tchekhov insisted that a writer should never use a note-book but should write from his observation and memory. When he died a whole drawer was discovered — full of note-books! Thomas Beer in his life of Stephen Crane stated that he owned neither a diary nor a note-book, but in my search for Crane material I was offered a note-book of Crane's by a book seller. I regret now that I didn't buy it. It was, perhaps beyond my ability to pay at that time.

Most writers, however, keep note-books where they enter interesting data that they may later use. I once owned a note-book by George Gissing that he carried with him while in Chicago. In it he had quotations from many authors, names of characters which he later used in his novels, and other data. This note-book is now in the Gissing collection that I presented to Yale university a few years ago.

Robert Louis Stevenson early suggested a note-book for a writer. He was a liberal user of one. William Hazlitt occupied a house for seven years that Milton once lived in, and all over the white walls were written notes and quotations that he might use. A rather difficult note-book, however, to carry around with one! Arnold Bennett used a note-book with plots for stories and novels.

I rarely use a note-book, but my pockets are usually bulging with letters and scraps of paper on which I have noted interesting things for use in these talks. I take them out and cross out the notes used, or transfer them to new bits of paper until used. On a long trip, however, I usually take a note-book.

Whether a writer or not, the note-book is an interesting companion. It keeps one's memory fresh and gives us the opportunity to share our joys and travels with others. A vacation is made doubly interesting if a note-book is taken along and all interesting places, people and things are entered in it.

Nearly all naturalists carry a note-book to set down every observation. There are so many interesting happenings that many a one is apt to be forgotten. Samuel Butler was a most stimulating writer. He wrote a great book "The Way of All Flesh," but I like his published "The Note-Books of Samuel Butler" best.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "New England and Nova Scotia."

Rev. J. E. Kieffman, pastor of the United Brethren church, preached an interesting sermon.

Personal Mention: Miss Mabel Loyella Lark, daughter of Henry L. Lark, of Millersburg, Pa., and Dr. William J. Gies, of Columbia university, were married at the bride's home last Monday. Professor Rev. J. W. Richard, of this place, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony.

INCOME SLASH REFLECTED IN BRITISH VOTE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The very considerable Socialist losses to Conservatives in recent county council elections in Britain have given rise to widespread debate as to the reasons for these setbacks to the nation's ruling party.

Thus far no explanation which is widely satisfactory has been evolved, even in England. In general it seems to be agreed that such elections often are governed by purely local conditions and sentiment, and don't necessarily reflect the views of the voters on national matters. That is, the same districts might give an entirely different vote in a national election such as is due next year.

Socialist Opposition
However, there is an observant school which feels the Conservative (Tory, some call it) vote does in considerable degree reflect the opposition of those classes of society which are against the Socialist program of nationalization. Many Conservatives feel (rightly or wrongly) that this program is aimed at the destruction of private initiative and the leveling off of individual incomes.

Be that as may, it's true that incomes in Britain are fast being leveled off, though in all fairness it must be recorded that the leveling off process was going on under Conservative rule long before the Socialists took over. As this column previously has pointed out, the so-called landed-gentry is disappearing rapidly under the very heavy taxation.

Death duties are so terrific that frequently an heir has to sell much of his property in order to meet taxes. When it happens, as I have seen it in England, that property changed hands twice within a year or so because of deaths, then the estate may be virtually wiped out, both ready money and real estate.

Lose 13 Baronets
British Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps recently stated during a speech in Commons that the number of net incomes over 5,000 pounds sterling ($20,000), after taxation, had dropped from a prewar figure of 11,000 to 250 now. It really is amazing to find that Britain can produce only 250 people with net incomes over $20,000.

editors of Burke's Peerage, which lists royalty and folks with titles, recently reported that they have lost track of thirteen baronets. These are knights who have hereditary titles. Since this announcement a couple of the "missing" men have turned up, as follows:

Sir Norman Hamilton Pringle is serving drinks at a hotel in Worcester. He laughingly explains that he has the idea of getting a job as manager of a country hotel, and took his present job to get experience. Sir John Henry Dunn, son of a former Lord Mayor of London, was found checking coal trucks as they came from an open pit mine near Barnsley.

Lilienthal Under Attack By Senator

Washington, May 31 (P) — Some colleagues said Monday that secrecy bars may limit attempts of Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) to prove publicly that David E. Lilienthal is guilty of "incredible mismanagement" of atomic affairs.

Hickenlooper has called for public hearings by the Senate-House Atomic committee, beginning Wednesday. He said he is "prepared to produce the proof" at these hearings that Lilienthal has been lax in his duties and should quit as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Paris, May 31 (P) — Emmanuel Celestine Cardinal Suhard, archbishop of Paris, died early Monday of a heart attack. He was 75. The death of the cardinal reduced the membership of the Sacred College of Cardinals to 55.

Economy-Minded Women Say It Helps Balance Both Budget and Diet

STROEHMANN'S GREAT AID TO LOW-COST MENUS

Here's an important tip for every woman whose job it is to plan and prepare three attractive meals each day on a limited sum of money. Be sure to investigate the numerous possibilities for tasty, inexpensive meals based on your favorite bread.

Homemakers find meals built around "Bread At Its Best" are the perfect way to combine economy, flavor and nutrition. Tasty casseroles, egg and bread combinations, puddings, cheese dishes, fish and meat loaves all stretch your food dollar and at the same time give you top flavor and food value.

Wise women know that their families will accord enthusiastic welcome to left-overs, that are dressed up with toasted "Bread At Its Best." Try creamed left-over vegetables or meats served on our golden toast and see for yourself!

The low cost of work-saving breadbox menus is not news to experienced homemakers. But remember this. The more "Bread At Its Best" you use, the more money you save because our bread helps in countless ways to replace and stretch more expensive foods.

Start saving today the breadbox way.

Absence Of Waste Makes Stroehmann's Real Economy Food

It's an oft-repeated statement that the food thrown out as waste each year by the average American family would feed the average European family for a considerable period of time. If true, it's a particularly ironic thought these days, when there are still hungry children in the world.

However, the statement may be open to question. The average American woman learned how to conserve food during the war-time days of shortages. What's more, she can't afford waste during these postwar days of high food prices.

Many homemakers have learned that one big way to avoid waste is to serve plenty of our bread. There is no waste to "Bread At Its Best." No peelings, no bones, no pits, no cores! Only solid, nutritious food!

Help avoid waste! Serve our bread at every meal!

"MIGHTY FINE SWAP" IS VERDICT OF FIRST-TIME STROEHMANN'S USERS

"So Rich In Flavor" Say Men "Such A Real Food Value" Say Women

If you've never tried our bread before, you have a wonderful taste experience ahead of you. You'll agree you never dreamed bread could be so delicious.

The first time you taste our bread, you'll discover what regular users mean when they claim that it is truly "Bread At Its Best."

Men say its oven-rich flavor is unsurpassed. Women find it a real food value, in these days of high food costs. Youngsters pay it the highest of compliments by always reaching for seconds.

Women who shop for the family meals claim that no other food gives them as much aid in budget-saving as our delicious bread.

Family food shoppers are strict judges of quality and economy. No item goes into their shopping carts regularly that does not pass this double test. And you'll find "Bread At Its Best" there every time.

Always Welcome

Thousands of women are enthusiastic about our bread. It is one of the few foods, they declare, that can be served at every meal, every day, without the family tiring of it. That's part of what makes "Bread At Its Best" such a big help in planning menus.

Your favorite loaf can be used in the main dish (Watch our ads for Breadbox Recipes), or to complement other foods. Every meal built around our bread is a nutritious, inexpensive meal. And mothers can be sure their families will enjoy eating breadbox meals, too.

Dad will love the tasty, right-from-the-oven flavor of "Bread At Its Best." And he'll appreciate its hearty, stick-to-the-ribs quality. A breadbox meal is a satisfying meal.

Favorite With Children

Mothers know how difficult it often is to get youngsters to eat food that is good for them. But they find that this trouble disappears when they keep our bread in the breadbox. Children don't have to be coaxed to have some delicious "Bread At Its Best" and jam each day as an afternoon snack. It's better for them, and so much less expensive than some of the rich sweets that tempt children.

Yes, homemakers endorse our bread as best for budget appeal, taste appeal and health appeal.

SEEKING BODY
Port Deposit, Md., May 31 (AP) — Further attempts will be made today to recover the body of Glenn R. Shover, 20, Harrisburg, Pa., reported drowned yesterday when a small boat overturned in the Susquehanna river near here. Police said Shover and two other Harrisburg residents, Donald Grell and Robert Shomper, were on a holiday fishing excursion when the boat upset in mid-stream. Grell and Shomper managed to swim to shore.

Harrisburg, May 31 (AP) — Today is the last chance for you motorists to fill up your gasoline tanks at the old tax rate.

Tomorrow, Pennsylvania's gasoline levy will go up a cent to five cents a gallon.

Four children of the orphanage placed a basket of flowers on the graves of George W. and Agnes Hoffman, who were members of St. James congregation and donors of the farms which comprise the orphanage. Appropriate graveside devotions by the pastor and the Rev. Mr. Leeming concluded the program of the day.

Plan Pre-school Clinic
Mrs. Brenda B. Walker, school nurse, has announced that pre-school clinics will be held for all schools in the Littlestown Joint School System on June 2 and 3, when all children in the Jointure, who will be six years of age before February 1, 1950, will be enrolled for the 1949-1950 term.

All clinics will be held in the Littlestown grade school building. The following schedule will be followed: Thursday, 9:30 a. m., the children of Mt. Joy township; 1:15 p. m., the children of Germany township; Friday, 9:30 a. m., the children of Littlestown borough and 1:15 p. m., the children of Union township. Mrs. Walker will be assisted in these clinics by the first grade teachers of the Jointure. Birth and vaccination certificates if available, should be brought along and a parent should accompany the child, if possible.

Readiness for learning tests for beginners will be under the supervision of Miss Grace M. Brandon, head of the Department of Special Education.

Chapter 28

Felicity never had a very clear memory of the next three days. Susan, hearing the news, promptly took full charge of the gathering together of a trousseau. She accepted the two hundred and fifty dollars that Felicity turned over to her with a wide-eyed, innocent look and said, "Why, of course it's enough, darling. It's plenty! I'm what's known as a shopping genius. You just leave everything to me. Grand that you're a perfect sixteen. I can just select what you want ready-made."

Susan had insisted that the wedding was to take place on the sun-terrace at Casa del Mar. Cornelia was going to be maid of honor and her frock was the loveliest that Cornelia had ever dreamed of owning. Tippy, almost unbearably important, was the ring-bearer.

"Not, of course, that you want any attendants, angel," Susan assured Felicity. "But Cornelia and Tippy will get such a terrific kick out of the titles."

Susan bewailed the fact that she and Chalmers could not make it a double wedding, but there was a lapse of several weeks that had to be accomplished before Susan and Chalmers could be married. Susan's divorced husband had dug up some neglected technicality, simply as a form of blackmail, and Chalmers was grimly determined not to pay off, but to convince the man once and for all that his days of mulling Susan had ended.

Felicity went about in those few hours with her head in a whirl; making plans, arranging things, stopping now and then to remind herself that Ma Green was "taking over" and that the children were delighted to know that Burton and Ma Green were going to be married and that they would live with Ma Green. There was no necessity, Felicity kept reminding herself, for plans or arrangements. Ma Green would manage better than she had ever done.

To look at them, as they all sat around the lamplit living room in Ma Green's cottage in the evenings, was to know that all was most gloriously right with the affairs of the Horne family. And Felicity said a little prayer of gratitude for the most beautiful of miracles—that of her father and Ma Green. There was a look in Ma Green's eyes when she smiled at Burton that somehow clutched at Felicity's heart; and the tone of Burton's voice when he spoke to Ma Green was eager and affectionate.

Lying awake at night, Felicity thought back over the past—the lovely, exciting mother she remembered with an almost passionate loyalty; the beautiful women who had come after her; and she knew that her mother, who had adored Burton with all her eager girl's heart, would be delighted and pleased at this marriage that was to mean companionship and happiness for Burton's old age, as well as security for the children.

On Saturday night, with the wedding set for Sunday morning on the terrace at Casa del Mar, with the honeymoon flight to New York immediately afterwards, Burton spoke almost hesitantly to the group about the supper table in the trailer. "I—ah—that is, Ma Green and I would like it a lot if you'd all come over to her place after a bit," he began. Then he grinned boyishly and said, "As a matter of fact, we've got everything arranged for our wedding and we'd like you, Floss and Garry, to see it well done. So we thought it might be best to do it now."

And so with the children in wide-eyed attendance, with Garrett and Felicity "to stand up with the bride and groom," as Ma Green expressed it, the minister from the nearby church read the ageless words that bound Burton Horne and Emma Dale Green in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was simple, yet its very simplicity took on a beauty that made Felicity's heart sing with happiness, even while tears stung her eyes.

"I do want you to be very happy, darling," she said when the service was over and she bent to kiss Ma Green, who was now Mrs. Burton Horne.

"I couldn't be anything else, now," said Ma Green with simple dignity. "Seems to me like I've been lonely and alone the biggest part of my life—and now with a fine, handsome husband and a passel of beautiful children—well, any woman ought to be fairly dancing with joy. And I am, too."

Burton lifted her work-worn hand with its untended nails and kissed it as warmly as though it were the loveliest hand in the world. "You make me very proud, my dear. I don't in the least deserve you, but I'll try not to let you down," he promised her, and the words came from his heart.

Ellen slid close to Ma Green, tipped back her small face and looked up. "Are you really my mother now?" she asked. "Denny says you are."

"Would you like me to be, sweet?" asked Ma Green huskily.

Ellen's small face shone with delight. "Oh—yes!" she piped joyously. "It'll be awful nice, having a mother like other children. And I like you, too—lots!"

"So do I," said Denny with an attempt at masculine gruffness, and tired hard not to wriggle in distaste when Ma Green hugged and kissed him.

"I guess that kind of expresses the way Cornelia and me feel, too, Ma Green. I mean—well, you know what I mean," said Jason, flushed and awkward, but very much in earnest.

Garrett drew Felicity out into the moon-silvered darkness to say good night to her. As he held her very close, he said, "For the last time, as long as we both shall live, this is good night, my heart! I'm never going to say it to you again—you hear?"

"That'll be quite all right with me," answered Felicity, and lifted her face for his kiss.

Chapter 29

Uncle Charles was waiting for them at the airport. For a moment he did not recognize, in the slim elegance of the girl beside Garrett, the girl he had never seen in anything but shabby, worn clothing.

But the moment she saw him she shrieked his name like a delighted child and flung herself into his arms. Uncle Charles led the way to his car.

"Have you made any arrangements about where you're going to stay?" he wanted to know when Felicity sat comfortably between him and Garrett on the back seat of the old-fashioned car.

"A hotel, I suppose. We really didn't have a lot of time to plan," answered Garrett.

"I was hoping you'd agree to accept my hospitality," suggested Uncle Charles.

Garrett glanced at Felicity and read the look in her eyes. "Thank you, sir. You are more than kind. We'd be delighted, wouldn't we, darling?"

"Oh, yes—of course."

And so the old car trundled its way into town and off Fifth Avenue, paused in front of an impressive-looking apartment house. They rode up in the elevator to the eighteenth floor, where Uncle Charles unlocked a door and an elderly butler came to meet them.

The suite assigned to Felicity and Garrett was composed of a bedroom, a sitting room and a bath, and was furnished in exquisite taste.

Felicity, in Garrett's arms, said huskily, "You're a darling not to refuse Uncle Charles' invitation. It would have been more fun, maybe, to have sneaked off somewhere by ourselves—but he's such a lamb, and he's been so good to me. He'd have been so disappointed if we'd refused him. He's very fond of me—"

And Garrett laughed a little, tenderly, as he kissed her again.

Promptly at ten o'clock the next morning Uncle Charles' car slid to a halt in front of a narrow alley that had at its far end a little sign reading: Stage Entrance. Uncle Charles got out; Garrett followed him and, between them, they lifted an excited and trembling Felicity to the sidewalk, while Uncle Charles dismissed the chauffeur.

"I wish you were coming too, Garry," said Felicity shakily.

He grinned down at her. "Thanks, angel-face—but I've a few little errands of my own and I'd only be in the way. Uncle Charles will see to it that nobody puts anything over on you."

Garrett bent his head, kissed Felicity and said to Uncle Charles, "Take good care of her, sir. She's something pretty special."

Uncle Charles tried hard to glare at him.

"Are you telling me that?" he snorted.

Uncle Charles led the way into the theater. Its darkness, its mustiness, its chaotic clutter of stage scenery and props didn't seem to bother him at all, though Felicity had to pick her way carefully, dodging hurrying men in overalls, until suddenly she stepped out onto the lighted stage.

Uncle Charles strode forward towards a group of men at a table and one of them sprang to his feet and said eagerly:

"How do you do, Mr. Drummond? This is a great honor, having you sit in with us on our rehearsals. But I understood you were bringing the author with you?"

Uncle Charles turned and beckoned to Felicity, who came forward, flushed and bright-eyed and scared. The man who had greeted Uncle

Charles so eagerly stared at her, frowned and said in a tone of complete amazement, "But, see here, Mr. Drummond, this child can't be the author of 'Meet the Family'?"

"What makes you think she can't?" demanded Uncle Charles. My god-daughter, Hueston was born backstage and cradled in a theater trunk, practically. She's the daughter of one of the greatest and loveliest stars the American theater has ever had. What makes you think she couldn't write a play? She has—and you've bought it, and she's here to see to it that you don't do anything to spoil it."

This first rehearsal was nothing more than a reading without expression or gestures of the play. When the reading was completed Hueston said briskly, "That's all now, people. Time out for lunch. Be back here at two o'clock, and we'll get down to business."

When they had gone Hueston turned to Felicity and said, "Will you and Mr. Drummond join me for lunch? I'd like to have your reaction to the people we've assembled for the play. To know whether or not you are satisfied with the cast?"

When they were settled at a table in a nearby restaurant, Hueston said earnestly, "I'm quite serious, Miss Horne, in asking you whether or not you are satisfied with the cast. After all, the play is yours. You know what you had in mind. You know whether or not these people will do—and if you are not quite content with them, all you need do is say so."

Felicity was still for a moment. She was remembering the over-eagerness in the way the people had greeted her this morning. But most of all she was remembering the man who had read the part she had always meant for her father; remembering the shabbiness of his overcoat, which had not been heavy enough for the cold day; the scrupulously clean collar that had been very neatly and carefully trimmed—by a razor blade. Felicity knew from experience; a man like Father who had been out of work maybe for months, even years.

"Yes," she said after a moment, almost hurriedly, not quite meeting Hueston's eyes. Because the man who read the father's part wasn't anything like what she had wanted; but she couldn't bear to say so; to deprive him of this job.

But that afternoon, she watched the man closely. His name was Frank Ward. It was vaguely familiar to her, but she couldn't quite place it, until Uncle Charles said something careless about Ward having been a star; and then she remembered. He had had a play that had run four years on Broadway. Father had been an understudy in one of the road companies. And now here Ward was, almost begging for the chance to do this part as a "come-back." And once more, for the thousandth time, Felicity was glad that Father hadn't wanted to come back.

Chapter 30

Meet The Family opened with a pleasant fanfare of publicity. Felicity grew almost accustomed to seeing her own picture looking up at her from the theatrical pages. To granting interviews to the press—which was what the show's press agent called handing out mimeographed copies of stories about her to various newspapers.

She herself was hysterical as she tried to get dressed for the evening, and snapped at Garrett with such insolence that, momentarily realizing what she had done, she stared at him appalled.

Garrett's eyes glinted a little as he looked down at her. And then deliberately he took her two slim shoulders between his hands and shook her hard. Dazedly, she stared at him, wide-eyed. And then she burst into tears and clung to him with both shaking hands.

It was pretty bad, but when it was over she said shakily, "Thanks, Garry. I'm s-sorry—" "Skip it, infant," said Garrett firmly. "And for Pete's sake, get this blasted opening over with so you and I can start for California. And if you ever even dare to look like you're so much as thinking of another play, I'll spank the day-lights out of you!"

"California!" exclaimed Felicity. "Yes, California," explained Garrett.

His police reporter series had interested Hollywood. The deal gave Garrett a handsome salary on the studio's writing staff.

Felicity stared at him, breathless and excited. "Oh, Garry—you're marvelous!" she whispered. She leaned toward him. "You know something, Garry?" she asked softly. "I'm never going to write another play as long as I live! Never!"

"Of course you will—" "No! You know there was only one real story in my life. Meet The Family was it, and I don't ever want to think of another."

They reached the theater to find everything in apparent confusion. But the curtain went up on time.

though Felicity hadn't believed that possible.

There was a generous outburst of applause after the first act curtain and Garrett came back to find Felicity, his eyes shining a little.

"I've got a surprise for you, angel-face," he told her, and drew her back to the "green room."

He flung open the door and stood back; and Felicity stood in the doorway, staring wide-eyed and incredulous. At Burton and Ma Green, and the children; and Susan and Chalmers and an excited Tippy.

"We couldn't bear not to be here for your play, darling," said Burton, and caught her in his arms as she swayed a little.

"Oh, Father—how does it sound?" she begged his assurance.

"Good theater, child—very good. I'm afraid you've got a bit on your hands," said Burton happily.

The call-boy's warning caught them all chattering like mad. And when they went back to the two boxes that Garrett had taken for them, he and Felicity went along. And Felicity saw the rest of her play from the box, surrounded by those whom she loved.

There was prolonged applause after the last curtain and a repeated clamor for "Author! Author!" which Uncle Charles finally calmed by leading her out on the stage and introducing her. She looked so young and appealing that the applause deepened until she could barely make herself heard. Then they stopped.

ped and listened, and Felicity said shakily, "I don't know how to make speeches—and I didn't dare write one for myself, for maybe you might not have liked the play, and I'd have felt a fool with an unused speech on my hands."

The audience loved her for the simple honesty of that.

"The stage has always meant a great deal in my life," she went on then. "You all know my father, Burton Horne—and, as Uncle Charles has told you, you were very good to my beautiful mother—and I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart for being so good to me. Thank you—and good-bye."

They thought that just a proof merely that she was saying good night to them. But it, too, came from her heart. She had had her brief day in the theater and it was enough; she was through with make-believe; she was ready to take up the beautiful realities of being Garrett's wife. And surely, she told herself radiantly as she came off the stage, the applause ringing in her ears, and walked straight into Garrett's arms, surely no girl could ask a lovelier fate!

STOCKS VEER DOWN

New York, May 31 (AP)—The stock market suddenly veered downward early today after a short-lived period of indecision. Key issues dropped fractions of a point more, many either establishing new lows for the year or coming close to it.

The retreat, a continuation of last week's weakness, once more brought the market within a short distance of a new bottom for the year.

of the public and parochial schools, dressed in white, each carrying a small American flag and bunches of flowers which they later strewed on the graves in the cemetery. The school children were led by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Lloyd E. Keefe, they were accompanied by their teachers.

Leonard Shealer and Carl Oyler rode horses at the head of the second division as marshals, and were followed by the Blue and Gray band. Behind the band was a car bearing Col. R. W. Daniels, commanding officer of the Letternkeny ordnance depot and his aide, Captain Christol, a jeep and six armored vehicles from Letternkeny.

Next in line was the color guard of the Civil Air Patrol of York, followed by the CAP band of York with its drum majorettes, and Co. A, 104th Mechanized Reconnaissance Squadron of Gettysburg, under the command of Capt. William G. Weaver, with nine jeeps, and four armored vehicles.

The color guard of the Sgt. William M. Steffy Post No. 15, United Spanish War Veterans and several members of the post in automobiles were next in line.

Then came the color guard of the William Max McGlathlin Post No. 685, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Waynesboro, its drum corps, VFW colors and marchers from the Gettysburg post and others.

The large American Legion delegation was headed by the drum corps of York Post No. 127. Bringing up the last section of the parade were hundreds of Boy and Girl Scouts, Cubbers and Brownies, and 4-H marchers.

During the latter part of the parade a flight of airplanes of the York Civil Air Patrol flew over the town the parade route and the cemetery.

Congressman James F. Lind, of York, marched in the parade with the American Legion group from York. The committee had asked him to ride in one of the several automobiles carrying distinguished guests but Lind elected to march with his Legion outfit.

Division of Cars

In cars at the end of the parade were: first car, Clyde E. Rankin Sr., principal speaker at the exercises in the National cemetery; Wilbur A. Gesselman, commander of District 22, American Legion; Thomas J. Winebrenner, chairman of the Memorial Day committee, and Judge W. C. Sheely, master of ceremonies at the cemetery.

Second car: Mrs. Clyde Rankin Mrs. Lind, and Mrs. Ruth Naugle president of the auxiliary of the Sons of Union Veterans. The third car contained the Rev. and Mrs. Willis R. Doyle and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Gresh. In the fourth car were the Rev. Dr. Howard S. Fox, Mrs. Sewell Kapp, Biglerville, secretary of the Women's Circle of the Grand Army of the Republic and Clyde Brown, York American Legion.

Those in the fifth car included Master Sergeant William L. Baldwin, of the Sons of Union Veterans Reserve, Harry G. Deatrick, Sons of Union Veterans, G. Henry Roth, commander of the local camp of the SUV and Mrs. Roth.

Here And There

News Collected At Random

Irington, Ga., May 31 (AP)—With no clues or a motive to guide them, investigators searched today for white men who whisked a negro from jail and shot him to death.

"There's nothing to go on," said Sheriff George Hatcher. "At present we don't even have a definite motive."

The negro, 28-year-old Caleb Hill, Jr., was taken from the jail early Monday morning by two white men. His beaten and bullet-pierced body was found near a creek a few hours later.

FBI Called In

Hatcher said an agent of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation entered the case today at his invitation. The sheriff said he thinks there were more than two men involved in Hill's death. "I don't think two men would try to handle something like this by themselves," he explained.

Hill was arrested by the sheriff at a negro roadhouse near this small middle Georgia town about midnight. While he was making the arrest, Hatcher said, Hill seized the sheriff's pistol and shot at him. Hatcher subdued Hill, took him to jail and returned to look for his pistol which was lost in the scuffle.

Did Not Protest

While he was gone, Hatcher continued, two white men entered the jail and took Hill away. The sheriff's wife and two young daughters were sleeping downstairs.

"When I returned home, I went straight to bed without looking in on Hill. The first thing I knew about his being killed was when I was called to identify a body (Hill's) this morning," Hatcher added.

Tom Carswell, a negro prisoner in the same cell with Hill, said the slain man made no protests when the two white men came in and told him: "Come on, let's go." Carswell said the men were strangers to him and he could not identify them if he saw them again.

SLAIN BY POLICE

Philadelphia, May 31 (AP)—Israel Reynolds, 23, was wounded fatally by police who said he ignored their orders to halt. Patrolmen Lawrence Magen and Harold Brody reported yesterday they each fired two shots at Reynolds as they saw him fleeing from a west Philadelphia home. He died in Misericordia hospital with a bullet wound of the abdomen.

The term "apothecary" is used in the United States, Scotland and Europe to mean druggist, but it is used in England to mean physician.

Young Wife Pleads In Vain For Life

Atlantic City, N. J., May 31 (AP)—Police held a 43-year-old truck driver Monday on charges of shooting down and fatally wounding his wife while she knelt in the street begging for mercy.

Mrs. Gertrude Rhoda, 23 — red-haired singer and accordion player billed as "Rusty" Rhoda — died shortly after she was shot Saturday midnight outside an Atlantic City cafe.

Her husband, David Rhoda, told police she had been "downing" his character and dunning his employers for money. Assistant Atlantic County Prosecutor David R. Brone said.

Detective Captain Edward Webb added, however, that there was "a confusing amount of conjecture" about the motive.

Webb said Rhoda admitted stealing the death weapon — a .33 caliber revolver — from the apartment of a policeman in the building where he lived.

ACCIDENTS TAKE 23 LIVES IN PA. OVER WEEK-END

(By The Associated Press)

At least 23 persons were killed in accidents in Pennsylvania during the three-day Memorial Day week-end. Eighteen of the deaths came in holiday traffic.

More than 100 persons were hurt in highway mishaps as all of the key state highways were jammed with a heavy flow of motorists.

On the holiday itself eight deaths were reported, including six in traffic accidents.

Joseph H. Copeland, 20, of Wickhaven, was struck and killed by a train at West Newton yesterday.

John Kolum, 57, of Philadelphia, was killed in an auto crash at Ivyland, Bucks county.

Other Accidents

Nine-year-old Arthur Bailey of Vowinkel was killed by an auto as he stepped from a bus, and Mrs. Emma Keiser, 56, of Philadelphia, was killed in an auto crash at Ivyland, Bucks county.

Michael Miller, 66, of Roscoe, died after he was hit by a car at Washington, (Pa.); John Mahoney, 82, was killed by a truck at Scranton, and George Shannon, Jr., 60, of Philadelphia, was injured fatally in an accident at Johnstown.

Norman Carey, 40, of Media, was found drowned in Cobbs creek on the western limits of Philadelphia.

In other western Pennsylvania accidents, Philip A. Chabazol, 19, of Cecil, was killed Saturday night in the crash of his motorcycle against a pole near Bridgeville; and Dorothy Sweeney, 5, Pittsburgh, was killed by a streetcar near her home Saturday.

Water delivered to the city of Rome by the great system of aqueducts in the First Century A. D. has been estimated at about 92,000,000 gallons a day.

LILIENTHAL AND HICKENLOOPER SPLIT WIDENS

By OLIVER W. DE WOLF
Washington, May 31 (AP)—The gap between David E. Lilienthal and his No. 1 Congressional critic, Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), spread to a chasm today as the Atomic Energy Commission chief accused the senator of "sneer" and "un-American" tactics.

Hickenlooper promptly retorted that the charges he has brought against Lilienthal's "competency" are not to be "tried out by newspaper barages and self-praise or self-serving declarations, but must be examined in an orderly way." He said he saw no need for "historical or theatricals."

The Senate-House atomic energy committee, of which Hickenlooper is former chairman, already has launched an inquiry into the charges. Both Hickenlooper and Lilienthal have called for a full public exploration of the facts.

Closed Door Meeting
The committee arranged a closed door meeting to hear Hickenlooper's demand that he be permitted to confront Lilienthal with what he says is proof of "incredible mismanagement."

Meanwhile, Senator Taft (R-Ohio), Senate Republican policy leader, disclosed that he has told Hickenlooper, "that I will support his stand."

He said he voted against Lilienthal's confirmation as AEC head two years ago because "I didn't think he was the right man for the job and I don't think so now."

"Not Well Founded"
The Federation of American

Scientists, which includes many of the men who helped develop the atomic bomb, lined up in Lilienthal's corner. The federation's five-man administrative committee said in a joint statement:

"We have come to the unanimous conclusion that from the evidence so far presented, not one of the present attacks on the management of the Atomic Energy Commission is well founded."

The latest words between the two antagonists started with a series of statements made by Lilienthal to three newsmen yesterday in his office.

Trying to "Break My Health"
Referring occasionally to a sheaf of pencilled notes which he had prepared, Lilienthal tore into Hickenlooper's charges as "calculated to arouse fear, uneasiness, fright and ultimately panic."

The gravity of the charges, he continued, is such as to "undermine the confidence of this country and the people of Western Europe in the principal security enterprise of this country x x x."

He also said some people, whom he did not identify, believe the inquiry will "break my health." Then he added that the AEC will get its work done "and my health will take care of itself."

WINS BANKERS' CONTEST
Portland, Ore., May 31 (AP)—Carl L. Rogers, Los Angeles, won first honors last night in the finals of a national speaking contest for bankers sponsored by the American Institute of Banking. Others among the top four selected from eight regional winners were Robert D. Wemer, Lebanon County Trust Co., Lebanon, Pa., second.

Careful observers assert that "sorcerers" often bring about the death of their victims by "sorcery" when those victims believe in the power of the "sorcerer" to kill.

Littlestown

Littlestown — A memorial program will be presented this evening at 6:15 o'clock by the Littlestown Rotary club in Schottie's banquet hall. This program will be in charge of the club service committee which consists of A. W. Schott, chairman, E. W. Dunbar, Preston Myers, William V. Sneeberger, Theron W. Spangler and A. G. Ealy.

A service appropriate to Memorial Day was held in St. John's Lutheran church, the Rev. Kenneth D. James, pastor, when the pastor spoke on the theme, "How Shall We Honor Them?" The flowers in the altar vases were in memory of Eugene Kuhn by his daughters Mrs. Fred Leister, Mrs. Elmo Jones and Mrs. Kenneth Miller. There was also a basket of flowers in memory of Mrs. Ralph Bollinger, who died last week. They were placed there by the family.

The Rev. Grantas E. Hoopert who has been transferred by the Central Pennsylvania annual conference of the Methodist church which met in First Methodist church, Altoona, May 18 to 23, to the Doyleburg Methodist parish, preached his final sermon on Sunday morning as pastor of Centenary Methodist church, where he has been pastor for the past two years. His sermon was appropriate to Memorial Day, the theme of which was, "The Silent Memorial of God." The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hoopert and daughter, Jolinda, will leave for their new parish the latter part of the week. Altar vases in the church were filled with roses by Mrs. E. E. Furlow and a basket of peonies was placed on the chancel by Mrs. Jesse Byers. The pastor has announced that the Women's Society of Christian Service will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Joseph Shadle, Black's Corners. He has also announced that there will be a very important meeting of the official board Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the church.

The account of the promotion exercises of the 6th grade in the Littlestown jointure, held Friday evening in the high school auditorium, which appeared in Saturday's issue of the Gettysburg Times failed to give credit for the stage decorations. The sixth grade of Littlestown borough, Mrs. Nelle Held, teacher, was responsible for those decorations which consisted of cut flowers and fern. The decorations were given to the senior class of the high school to add to their decorations for the baccalaureate service on Sunday evening.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the J. Harry Koontz; elders, Edward Brown and John H. Riley; deacons, Bittie Jones, Robert Gitt and James Yingling. These newly elected officers will be installed by the pastor in the morning service. The flowers in the altar vases on Sunday morning were in memory of George DeGroff, who died 13 years ago. They were presented by Mrs. George DeGroff and family. A basket of flowers was placed in front of the pulpit by Mrs. Raymond Kump and family, in memory of their husband and father, Raymond Kump, who died five years ago. The pastor, the Rev. Mr. Kammerer, preached a sermon on "The Significance of Memorial Day." There was an anthem by the junior choir. The pastor has announced that the regular monthly meeting of the church council will be held Wednesday evening in the lecture room at 8 o'clock. There will be senior choir rehearsal Thursday at 7:30 p. m. and Junior choir Friday at 6:30 p. m.

Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, the pastor baptized George Franklin Ireland, Jr., son of George Franklin Ireland, Sr., and his wife Charlotte Hess Ireland. He was born January 17, 1949.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stover, daughter, Marilyn, and son, Larry, York, were week-end visitors at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Stover, South Queen street and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Garland, East King street.

John A. Rebert, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rebert, near town, a student at Shippensburg State Teachers' college, has returned home for his summer vacation.

Miss Ethel Kindig, a teacher in the public schools of Coatesville, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kindig, East King street.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Sell, daughter, Pearl, East King street extended, David Little, son Ned and daughter, Kay, near town, spent Monday at Rivera Beach, Md.

Aged Lutheran Minister Expires

New York, May 31 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Trexler, a leader in the United Lutheran Church in America, died yesterday at 71 after spending what he called "the happiest day of my whole 50 years in ministry."

He made that comment to friends Sunday night as he returned home from a church celebration of his half-century as a clergyman.

Dr. Trexler apparently had recovered from an attack of pneumonia last month and a subsequent abdominal operation.

He presided over the church's New York and New England synod at various times between 1920 and 1944. Before that, he founded and served at the Messiah church in Brooklyn and the church of the Redeemer, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Trexler, a bachelor, served in Europe in World War I as chief of Lutheran chaplains. He also served as president of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America.

DELAY ACTION ON APPLICATION FOR LICENSE

After listening to five hours of testimony and arguments from an array of counsel in the Circuit court room in Frederick Friday, License Commissioner G. Cleveland Trout took under advisement a second application of Richard H. Rosensteel and Louis Cooper for a class A beer, wine and liquor license. The commissioner had previously refused a license, holding there was no need for a third such license in that district.

A petition signed by 251 residents of Emmitsburg district in behalf of the applicants was presented and was subject to two interpretations from rival attorneys. Those for the applicants pointed to the petition as a directory from the signers, "some of the best people in Emmitsburg" to grant the license because present accommodations were inadequate. E. Austin James, attorney for the protesting residents, pointed out that it was a petition not to deny a war veteran an opportunity to get into business.

Claim Population Increase
Attorneys for the applicants contended that the population of Emmitsburg district is now 5,000, holding that there are at least 4,500, which would justify the granting of the license within the commissioner's rule, which limits one such license to 1,500 residents. There are two class A licenses in Emmitsburg district now.

Several witnesses were produced to show that the two liquor stores in Emmitsburg now are not adequate to properly serve the public. The new store, it was argued by Mr. Storm, would bring customers down from Pennsylvania to help swell Maryland income from alcoholic beverages.

Benjamin B. Rosenstock and Alton Y. Bennett were associated with Mr. Storm as attorneys for the applicants. Francis Petrott joined with Mr. James as a "friend of the Commissioner" as counsel for the protesters. Mr. Petrott said the Frederick County Liquor Dealers association, which he represents, has opposed the granting of the new class A license in Emmitsburg. T. West Claiger, Jr., represented the commissioner.

Mr. James announced that he may wish to present an additional witness this week. No date was set to hear the additional witness, if called.

BREAK UP RED RALLY

Tokyo, May 31 (AP)—Police today broke up a demonstration by 1,000 Communist-led students at the Municipal Assembly hall. Forty-three were arrested. Several were injured in a stone-throwing fight before the dispersement. One man, a street car operator, died in the affray. He plunged from the third floor of the hall during fighting last night.

Appendicitis occurs oftener among young people than old people and also oftener among boys than among girls.

THE "BUY" OF THE YEAR IS NASH!
By every new-car comparison, one car stands out. That car is the Nash Airflyte.
Only one new car is completely streamlined, even to enclosed wheels. It's the Airflyte.
Only one car has seats that can make Twin beds—has more room inside—is lower but has more road clearance. It's the Airflyte.
Only one big car goes 25 miles on a gallon* at average highway speed. It's the Nash "600" Airflyte.
Only one car is Girder-built, frame and body one Unitized structure. It's the Airflyte.
Only one car has Uniflo-Jet carburetion—Uniscope—Cockpit Control—a one-piece curved windshield on all models—Weather Eye Conditioned Air. It's the Airflyte.
Compare the Airflyte with any car at any price. Let your Nash dealer demonstrate the Nash "600" or Nash Ambassador today!
